PRESS RELEASE

WASHINGTON & BALTIMORE SUBURBAN PRESS NETWORK AND FAIRFAX COUNTY TIMES SELL ADVERTISING WITH A NEW EMPLOYEE

Reston, VA—Washington & Baltimore Suburban Press Network in conjunction with the Fairfax County Times is pleased to announce the hiring of Christian Sejas, to assist broadening the success of the company's advertising sales.

Sejas, a Springfield, VA native, has accepted the title and responsibilities of WBSPN's Advertising Sales Manager. Working beside Pamela Morris and Lynwood Shackelford, Sejas is expected to cover local, display advertisement sales for the McLean, Springfield and Vienna areas, in addition to overseeing the placements of local real estate display advertisements.

"We are excited and pleased to have Chris join WBSPN; we consider his addition to the team as a prominent advantage to our company, especially because of his strong financial background. We are certain many of our clients will also see him as an asset to their company's needs as well," said Ken Courter, Executive Vice President of WBSPN.

Sejas brings many years of customer service and financial experience to the WBSPN team. Recently, Sejas worked for PNC Banks where he learned that you gain the most satisfied customers through diligent customer service.

"I knew this was a good opportunity for me to work here, because I have worked with Pam [Morris] and Rich [Whippen] before, and I know that how they perform in business is how I want to perform in business. At this time, with the success that the Washington & Baltimore Suburban Press Network has been having it has become apparent that this is a great work environment to be in right now," said Sejas.
